Who's Who?

These two men, who look so much alike, are strong rivals in a political way. Sen. Charles Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, is counted on to swing many a vote to Herbert Hoover, while William F. Kenney, wealthy New York contractor, is a powerful backer of Gov. Al Smith. That's Kenney at the top.

Miss Daniels was stricken yesterday while at work. While her condition at first caused physicians some concern, she was said to be resting "very comfortably" today.

Wets Appear Winning North Dakota Tests
Fargo, N. D., June 29.—(AP)—Its small margin rapidly dwindling as returns from the western part of the state piled in, the cause of the "drys" in North Dakota seemed certain to go under in the deluge of "wet" votes being counted today as 1,059 precincts of the state's 2,192 were turned in.

The vote on the state's prohibition law stood: for repeal 49,491; against repeal 50,517.

CRIPPLED WITH RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS PAST

Agony in Knees and Back; New Gly-Cas Like Magic in Relieving Local Lady.

Many medicines have been introduced in Dixon in past years, but more and more local residents are now realizing that nothing has ever been brought here before like this amazing new vegetable medical discovery, Gly-Cas, which the Gly-Cas Man is explaining at Campbell's White Cross drug store, this city.

MRS. CHARLES CHARLTON

few days ago, Mrs. Charles Charlton, respected Dixon lady living at 420 E. River street, made the following surprising statement:

"For the prompt relief of rheumatism, there is no preparation or medicine to even compare with your Gly-Cas," Mrs. Charlton says. "For years I had been practically crippled from rheumatism in my knees and back. Some days I could hardly get around at all and any walking simply laid me up. At night my misery from the rheumatism would be so distressing, I had heard people recommend your Gly-Cas above any other preparation and at the first opportunity I began using it. It tells you, the results surprised me. I guess that is because I had judged Gly-Cas along with other medicines I had previously used and which gave me no particular benefit. But with your Gly-Cas, things were different—in a relatively short time the rheumatism pains were eliminated from my knees and back and the soreness and stiffness has left me now. I rest and sleep normally at night, since taking Gly-Cas and, as I said, I was unable to do any amount of walking before, but now it seems I can get out and do things I never thought I'd ever do again. My advice to anyone suffering from rheumatism surely to take your Gly-Cas."

The Gly-Cas Man is at the Campbell's White Cross drug store, Dixon, and is daily meeting the public and explaining this amazing new medical discovery. Sold by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

Tennessee Town is Struck by Tornado
Nashville, Tenn., June 29.—(AP)—A tornado at Alexandria in DeKalb County today practically destroyed 23 homes, 44 barns and caused other property damage. No lives were lost so far as reported, but streets were blocked by falling trees so that travel through the town was impossible. The fair grounds were badly damaged.IMPORTANT.

BOTH PICKED BY SOLITARY CALL OF ROLL

in committee and sub-committee, a plank was found that satisfied the most prominent of Smith and anti-Smith leaders alike. Composed of but two sentences, it declares the Republicans have not enforced the prohibition law, and pledges the Democratic nominee to make an honest effort for enforcement of that and all other statutes.

Brought to the convention floor with the support of both wets and drys, the plank provoked but a few minutes of discussion and went into the platform without a roll call. Governor Moody of Texas, a member of the platform committee, told the convention he would have preferred a direct endorsement of prohibition as a policy, but in the interest of harmony would not even submit a minority report.

Was Quickly Adopted
Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, countered that for his part he was willing to take the committee plank even though he preferred local option to federal prohibition. Senator Glass of Virginia, a dry leader and author of the plank, pointed out that it was so worded that the party nominee would have to be bound by it regardless of his personal beliefs.

Then, in less time than it takes to tell it, the committee report was adopted with a crashing chorus of approval and only a few scattered "no's."

The only other part of the Democratic declaration of principles to make serious trouble in committee was the farm plank. As finally brought in and adopted, it pledges the party to take immediate and effective steps to deal with the problem of farm surpluses and the rehabilitation of agriculture generally. Some party leaders believe that Governor Smith will make a more detailed announcement on this subject early in the campaign.

Long Speaking Program
A long program of nominating and seconding speeches preceded consideration of the platform on the convention floor, and even after the platform was approved and the nomination of Smith was made, the long and loud demonstration, the convention stayed on until well after midnight hearing exhortations to battle. Besides Senator Reed, John W. Davis, the party nominee four years ago, was brought to the convention platform. He told the cheering delegates that the call of the party in 1928 was harmony under the leadership of Smith.

In the final tabulation of the vote by which the New Yorker was chosen, only five states appeared as having failed to give the leader at least a part of their support, and one of them was Reed's own state of Missouri, which was blocked by convention rules when it sought to turn the band wagon movement to Smith into a nomination by acclamation. The others were Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Texas—representing the remnants of what the anti-Smith leaders had once hoped to build into an irresistible bone-dry and anti-Tammany phalanx against the nomination of the New York Governor.

Total of Votes
The final totals of the official ballot, revised to show switches to Smith after his nomination became inevitable, tells impressively the margin of his victory.Smith 849 2-3.
Senator George of Georgia, 52%.
Senator Reed of Missouri, 52.
Representative Hull of Tennessee, 48 5-6.Jesse Jones of Texas, 43.
Chief Justice Watts of South Carolina, 18.
Senator Harrison of Mississippi, 8%.Evans Woolen of Indiana, 7.
Governor Donahay of Ohio, 5.
Representative Ayres, of Kansas, 3.
Former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, 3.Former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, 4.
Huston Thompson of Colorado, 2.
Governor Bilbo of Mississippi, 1.
Not voting 2%.Ohio Turned Trick.
It really was Ohio that consummated the nomination. When the first call of the states was completed Smith's total stood at 724 2-3, or nine short of the number needed to nominate. But having paid their tribute to their respective favorite sons, a half dozen states were ready to change their votes and get aboard the bandwagon. For several minutes a presidential nomination hung in the air, while delegation chairmen from all sections of the hall tried to shout each other down in their rival attempts to be first to switch to Smith. Chairman Meeker of Ohio, standing on his chair in the center of the delegate section, won out and cast for the New York governor 44 Ohio votes where he had had but one on the initial roll call.

Mississippi, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, and Tennessee quickly followed.

When a group of Los Angeles real estate men met the other day, one of the features of their program was a breakfast in the clouds aboard one of the great New Los Angeles-San Francisco air liners. The realtors covered

Mrs. Clarence Good Was Honored Guest

Thursday afternoon Mrs. George Beier and Miss Zeida Swartz charmingly entertained at the home of Mrs. Beier, for a bride of a few weeks, Mrs. Clarence Good, formerly Miss Evelyn Dana. There were guests for three tables of bridge, and Miss Lucille Fry was awarded the favor for high honors; and Mrs. Sterling Schrock received the second favor. Garden flowers in lovely vases graced the rooms of the apartment, pink and green being the favorite colors.

After bridge a tempting tea was served in the dining room, where Miss Dorothy Palmer poured, and here the attractive color combination in pink and green was artistically adhered to in the lovely flowers and also in the food combinations, especially in the dainty sandwiches, the cakes, and the bonbons. Pink roses and ferns, and cream colored candles completed the charming effect, as the guests enjoyed the hour over the tea cups.

Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid at Lowery Home

The Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid Society met at the pleasant country home of Mr. Scott Lowery in an all day meeting. A bounteous picnic dinner was served at noon. After dinner a program included a song and the reading of a paper on "Cutting" after roll call and the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. Alice Hoban; a reading by Mrs. Katherine Johnson; reading, Miss Mabel Stanley; solo, Mrs. Ivan Floto; reading, Betty Lowery; recitations by Julia and Joe Trumble; piano solo, Mrs. Warner; piano solo, Betty Lowery. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer. All guests departed for their homes late in the afternoon voting Mrs. Lowery a splendid hostess.

Alice Dillow Weds In Aurora Saturday

Alice Dillow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Dillow of Amboy, and Victor Smith of Aurora, were united in marriage Saturday, June 23 at 4 o'clock in Aurora by Justice of the Peace Peck.

The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Jorey, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.

The bride was attired in a gown of Napoleon blue satin and carried a bouquet of roses, and the bridesmaid was attired in a gown of flowered crepe de chine and also carried roses. The young couple intend to make their home in Aurora where Mr. Smith is employed in the Benson Manufacturing company.

To Enjoy Outing At Lake Waubesa

A group of Dixon young people anticipate a happy outing at Lake Waubesa, starting at noon Saturday by motor. There will be three cars and those in the party will include, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gonnemann who will chaperone the crowd, themselves young newlyweds, Miss Merritt Deveney, Maryelyn Miller, Frank Kennedy, Glenn Anderson and Earl Larkin. Great will be the tales of the fishing thereof and of the large fish which will be caught.

THIRTEEN NEW ASSOCIATIONS IN LAST MONTH

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Thirteen new parent-teachers associations were formed in Illinois within the past month, it is reported in the June issue of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers Bulletin. The largest Congress of Parents also installed at Wheaton, Rockford, Streator, Evanston, East St. Louis, Carbondale, and Beason. It was also announced that more than 80 associations of the state organization were fostering summer round-up campaigns among pre-school children as a preventive to poor health.

MR. AND MRS. GRANT ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. John Grant of South Dixon entertained a few friends at dinner last evening, followed by a radio party.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Fresh apricots, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Tongue and celery salad, whole wheat bread and butter sandwiches, fresh fruits, vanilla wafers, milk, tea.

DINNER—Hot meat loaf with tomato sauce, grilled sweet potatoes, steamed Swiss chard, fresh cherry pie, milk, coffee.

The luncheon suggested could be used for a porch or garden meal without change. Or, if a picnic by the roadside is wanted, pack the salad in a strong pasteboard container, wash the lettuce and carry it in an airtight pail, wrap the sandwiches in heavy waxed paper and carry the milk and tea in thermos bottles. Don't neglect the lettuce even on a picnic.

Tongue and Celery Salad

One-fourth pound smoked beef tongue, 1 cup shredded celery, 1 hard cooked egg, 1 sweet green pepper, 1 small head lettuce, 3-4 cup French dressing.

Cut tongue in match-like pieces. Wash and crisp celery and cut the same way. Cut egg white in narrow strips. Mince pepper after discarding seeds and white pith. Mash yolk of egg and add with 1 tablespoon minced parsley to French dressing. Mix thoroughly and add enough paprika to make the dressing pink. Combine prepared ingredients with French dressing and serve with carefully washed and crisped lettuce.

NEW ATTITUDE OF THE OLDER GENERATIONS

By Oliver Roberts Barton

Two mothers sat side by side at a high school commencement. One had a son and one had a daughter on the program. Each was equally nervous when the time came for her own particular child to step out before the footlights and declaim to a mature and critical audience.

The women were strangers, but by that peculiar intuition known only to mothers, they soon sensed their natural tie and were whispering away for dear life before the exercises were half over.

"I'm so relieved that Katherine got through all right," breathed one mother thankfully. "This is the first time I've heard a word of her speech. I don't know who wrote it, she's been so busy with other things. I've been very nervous about it."

The other mother's eyes grew round. "That's exactly what William did," she declared. "And I have been worrying too. I never dreamed anyone else would be so casual about a commencement speech. Why when I was a girl—"

Their eyes met, and slowly they smiled. "It's the new way, I guess," said the first. "I thought both of them were wonderful."

"So did I," said the mother. "I guess you and I supplied the nerves for all of us."

What could be more typical of the sureness and capability of modern youth, and the difference between the old and the new? Commencement in the past meant a family affair, if one of the sons or daughters was valedictorian, salutatorian, or something equally nerve-racking. Of course it is hard for a mother to understand to school twelve short years ago now is a man or woman grown, but still harder to understand that since her day the character of those twelve years has changed.

The modern parents, I believe, is passing the indignation stage. Amazement is taking its place—amazement and pride. And that is as it should be.

Dixon W. R. C. Votes $10 Salvation Army

Dixon Woman's Relief Corps, No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, held its regular meeting Monday afternoon at the Grand Army hall. The business of the Corps was transacted as usual. The Corps voted $10 to the Salvation Army drive. The reports of the delegate to the convention at Kankakee were given and were excellent.

Entertained for Mrs. C. S. Barker

Mrs. C. S. Barker who has been spending ten days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. McIntyre, has returned to her home in Pasadena, California.

During Mrs. Barker's brief stay, Mrs. L. E. Pitcher delightfully entertained a company of young women, former employees at the Dixon Telephone office one afternoon. A tempting luncheon was served. Mrs. Barker as Miss Catherine Winters was employed at the office here.

Mrs. Helen Schriver of Austin and R. B. Lippincott of Chicago, were guests of Rev. and Mrs. A. Turley Stephenson at the parsonage over the week end. Mr. Lippincott returned to Chicago Sunday evening and Mrs. Schriver returned Monday. She is a well known social worker in the city and has made many enjoyable friendships during her work which is most interesting and which she enjoys very much.

Large Hats Feature Women's Appearance At Houston Meeting

BY MARTHA DALRYMPLE Associated Press Writer

Houston, Texas, June 23—(AP)—The hull in feminine oratory that marked the opening sessions of the Democratic convention has been followed by the proverbial storm, women walking away with the honors in seconding the nomination of Governor Smith.

Three of the gayly-clad sex broke loose the floodgates during the second evening session last night. Nellie Taylor Rors, one-time Governor of Wyoming, was the first woman to appear before the speakers' table and microphones.

Her strong voice, amplified many times by the machines in front of her, was heard to the very last row of the hall, but the appearance she made had to be relayed back by word of mouth.

In a white lace sleeveless frock, she presented the perfect picture of proper summer costume. A large pink neckline hat that swooped becomingly over her eyes shadowed her face from the glare of the photographer's lights.

Her eulogies of the New York Governor were cut short by the shout from the floor of "Time's up." With a gracious bow to Chairman Robinson she relinquished her place and returned to her seat.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, resplendent in black lace evening dress under which gleamed a pink satin slip, launched into her subject, Smith's nomination, in a business-like manner.

Mrs. Stella Hamlin, newly elected National Committeewoman from Louisiana, upheld the honor of her sex and gave the women the last word. Her second to Smith's nomination concluded the evening's performance and she retired from the platform amid congratulations that boasted no small part of relief that the long session was at an end.

Interest was centered in Mrs. Hamlin's first public appearance in view of the fact that she is considered a possible successor to Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, retiring Committeewoman from Missouri, as Vice Chairman of the National Committee.

Mrs. Smith, whose self-imposed seclusion in Houston was shattered when hundreds of yelling and singing Smith supporters besieged her box after the nominating speech, wore an all-over blue lace dress, with a large straw hat to match.

Mrs. Wilson, who graciously relinquished the spotlight for the evening to the wife of the leading Presidential candidate, also appeared in lace, a gown of black chiffon inset with heavy lace. Her hat, an enormous one of cerise velvet with the crown's edge heavily laden with matching roses, was the landmark of the platform. By her hat she was known.

The attitude in the Smith box during the nominating speech of Franklin D. Roosevelt and during the subsequent demonstration was curiously watched by a score of spectators. Not once did Mrs. Smith evince any apparent interest in the declarations of her husband's virtues. She sat stolidly in her front seat, smiled occasionally in faint appreciation of portions of the speech, once or twice moved her head, and nodded in affirmation when her sister-in-law, Mrs. John J. Glynn, grew excited over the proceedings.

Stitch and Chatter Club Held Meeting

The members of the Stitch and Chatter club held a delightful meeting Thursday with Mrs. Walter Clay on Hennepin avenue, with all the members present but one, and she was ill. Much sewing was accomplished and all spent an interesting afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served. The table was graced with a centerpiece of yellow and white daisies.

Twentieth Wedding Anniversary is Observed

Mrs. Della Spitzer, mother of Mrs.

A. L. Livingston, who has been a guest at the home of her daughter for some time, returned to her home in Lake Mills, Wis., Saturday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Livingston and Mrs. Lily Woolever, starting early Saturday morning and reaching the beautiful Lake Mills at noon. Lake Mills is a resort near Rock Lake, in the lovely Wisconsin lake country.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston on Sunday, June 24th, celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary, and prepared to enjoy the day quietly with relatives at the home of Mrs. Della Spitzer, which is also that of her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spitzer, with Mrs. Woolever as a guest. But shortly before 1 o'clock relatives and friends began to arrive, with knowing smiles and well filled baskets of food, which added to the delicious supply at the Spitzer home made a most appetizing dinner, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Livingston. A happy afternoon was spent and evening also and during the day a purse of gold was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Livingston, for the twentieth anniversary, with the best wishes of all present for future happy years. The recipients expressed their hearty thanks for the gift and the kind thoughts prompting it.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Livingston and Mrs. Woolever motored back to Dixon, leaving Mrs. Spitzer, who made many friends here during her visit with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spitzer.

Bridge Made Easy

3-PRE-EMPTIVE BIDS

Holding all the aces, some players bid a pre-emptive two no trump, as in this manner they hope to shut out bidding and lead-indicators. This practice more often shuts out partner's major suit declaration. Furthermore, by bidding two no trump, accurate information of your holding is only conveyed to your partner, but also to your opponents, and they become timid about bidding. With such a strong holding you should encourage bidding to place you in the position not only of obtaining information from your partner, but of inflicting penalties by having opponents bid beyond their contracting ability.

To pre-empt originally you must bid: three in spades; four in hearts; four in diamonds (preferably five) five in clubs.

Don't lower bid is merely a weak effort that will not produce the result you seek. It will in all probability prove futile, as it will only encourage bidding by opponents.

If your hand warrants a pre-emptive bid, be bold in making it—let it be truly pre-emptive and not a whimper. Unless the hand warrants a shut-out declaration, bid one in preference to any hybrid half-pre-emptive that will usually help only your opponents and accomplish nothing for you.

Don't pre-empt if you have nothing to fear.

Don't pre-empt if the hand contains general strength.

Don't pre-empt if the hand contains support in both major suits.

Don't pre-empt unless you fear a strong major bid by opponents.

Don't pre-empt unless you believe that, with average assistance from partner, you may make game or be set not more than one trick.

Don't bid less than three in spades or four in hearts or four in diamonds (preferably five) or five in clubs.

Don't bid a suit of less than seven cards worth at least six tricks.

Don't bid three unless the total hand contains a minimum of seven tricks.

Don't bid four unless the total hand contains a minimum of eight tricks.

Do Mothers Buy Emotions or Minds?

Des Moines Ia., June 28—(AP)—Less than fifty per cent of the mothers of the United States who act as purchasing agents of their households, were placed in the class of intelligent buyers by Margery Plier Beem, chairman of the Illinois Homemakers' section, in an address here today before the American Home Economics association.

"The remainder," Miss Beem said, "buy, not with their minds, but with their emotions. They want their children to look like the children of their rich neighbors. They want durability and comfort, yes, they want a first expensive appearance at a low price."

If the American housewife does not get what she wants, Mrs. Beem said, the fault is her own. "So necessary is it to the manufacturer, retailer and advertising agency to know what the home maker wants today that if you and I and two dozen other women actually want a reasonable change in children's shoes, and if we go to a retailer, tell him what we want, convince him that we represent even a small class of buyers who will purchase this new type of shoe, then that type will appear upon the market. Homemakers are changing the market in this way every day."

Short Interviews With Famous Women

By NEA Service

"An artist should not have to make his art a means for earning his livelihood," Ruth St. Denis, famed dancer and co-founder of the Denishawn School of Dancing, said.

"In a democracy like the United States, where art is not government supported as it was in the Russian Imperial Ballet and in pre-war days in German court theaters, it is a great temptation for an artist to give the people what they demand. One's eye inevitably is on the box-office."

"But it is not good for the human soul to 'art' all the time. Therefore in our school we insist that our pupils learn some trade that parallels their art, at which they may be self-supporting. This prevents their 'selling' their art."

"Every great artist of the past has worked with his hands. I think every artist should work four or five hours a day at some trade. It is good for the artist to face drudgery for it is a boon to all of us."

"We give scarcely more than ten per cent of our program to spiritual art. I believe this ration is true of the output of most artists. For to devote one's whole life to art, one must be supported. And patronage of wealthy persons is a dangerous thing. It is better to be self-supporting and give a smaller per cent of one's time to independent art."

"It should not be stated that Christianity has been tried and failed, but rather that Christianity has been tried and given up because it proved too difficult," declared Maude Royden, England's famous evangelist. "Christianity would revolutionize all our standards of life, if we should adopt it. We would have to live on an entirely different plane."

"It was an astonishing revelation to Christian people when the Salvation Army, by its work, convinced them that God really cared for fallen women, though they had all heard the story of the woman taken in adultery read in church, listened to it, and imagined that they really believed it."

"It would be equally astonishing if some spiritual leader rose who could make us understand what our Lord really felt about intolerance, for instance. The same would be true about wealth, or self-righteousness. "Perhaps the world would find it difficult. But we would fight it. I feel it was the thing to do. Take the problem of voluntary poverty, for instance. In the light of specific tests of Christ, I think it is very hard for human nature to practice Christianity."

FASHION HINTS—NEW HANKIES

The black-white vogue spreads to handkerchiefs. Wisps of linen have startling modernistic patterns printed in black on them.

PRINTED LINEN

A circular skirt of white linen, with scalloped edges, has a slip-over long-sleeved blouse of black and white printed linen.

PRINTED BLOUSE

A maroon silk jacket suit, with pleated skirt, has a hand-blocked linen blouse of maroon design on oyster white background.

SUMMER SHOES

Summer shoes press all the new materials into their service. They come in printed gild, linen, straw, shantung silk, rayon fabric and glazed chints.

BROWN'S PROMINENCE

The vogue for brown extends to household linens. A new lunch set of cream has five shades of brown linen applied as flowers and new bath

FLAT PURSES

The envelope is the smart purse for summer. A white gird one has the tri color motif worked out in kid stripes around the edge and for a triangular monogram.

WRAPPED ICE

For the ice box that is old and not so scientifically perfect as it should be, newspapers wrapped around the ice keep it from melting.

SHOE GLOVES

Fine, lightweight toe rubbers in all colors and in snakeskin printed rubber, can be had now fitted into their own case about the size of a folded pocket handkerchief.

SHOESKIN SETS

Python, a new, glossy shoe medium, new fashion pumps, purse a belted hat-band and a buckled belt for early fall modes.

GREY-BLACK

A new shoe for suit wear is a trim one-strap sandal with the quarter and tip of grey lizard and the shank of black patent leather.

QUILTED ENSEMBLE

A sleeveless maize-yellow silk tennis frock has a short jacket, a pouch purse and a sports hat of the same silk, quilted in a floral design.

NOVELTY PURSE

A new shagreened purse looks like a half cantaloupe in its pouchy, ridged shape. It outside is green and its inside cantaloupe colored.

MAROON SHADES

New leather shoes, new purses and traveling bags are featuring maroon shades as the latest compromise between flaming red and soft brown.

LONG GLOVES

Short sleeved chiffons, elbow sleeves or sleeveless sports attire all call for six button length gloves. New ones, slip-ons, are in washable off-white kids and chamois.

ARE CAMPING IN COTTAGES AT GRAND DETOUR

STRAW TRIMMED BAGS; ANKLE MONOGRAMS

Paris—(AP)—Bags with appliques of straw are a recent fad. The straw of a fine weave and is durable. The idea originated to match straw motifs which appear as insets in felt hats. The natural colored straws are the smartest.

Ankle monograms on hose are a recent style eccentricity. If preferred the monogram may be at the calf or just below the knee. Vivid colored monograms are in the lead.

PLANS FOR BIBLE CONFERENCE MADE AT FINE MEETING

Interested Ministers and Laymen Conferred Last Evening

By happy arrangement of the fellowship committee of the Dixon Federated Council of Churches, the Rev. Frank Brandell, chairman, a company of two dozen ministers and laymen from the co-operating churches sat together in luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. The Rev. W. W. Marshall, President of the Council, directed the after-supper discussion of three approaching enterprises to which the Council is lending cordial endorsement and support, the Rock River Bible Conference, the School of Missions and the Chautauqua.

Dr. Parley E. Zartman of Winona Lake, Director of the Conference, who is spending a few days here in set-up activities, gave high praise to the local preparations this year. The publicity is bringing numerous inquiries from quite distant sections, and the expressions of interest and announced intentions of attendance have exceeded those of preceding years very noticeably. The presence of the celebrated preacher, John McNeill of Los Angeles, and "Quiet Talks" Gordon of New York has especially attracted attention, since it will be the first time in this area that these notables have been heard.

One Program Change

A threatened health break-down has compelled the cancellation of dates by Miss Grace Ixse, Bible Study Leader for the Conference, and her place will be supplied by Dr. Frank Palmer of Winona Lake. Otherwise the program is intact, and will open Sunday, July 15, as scheduled.

The Rev. L. W. Walter of St. Paul's Lutheran church presented the program of the School of Missions, in place of Mrs. Hammer of Polo, who was expected. A good facility is provided, and the uniform, interdenominational, text-book will be used as previously. It is felt that the dating of this school the week following the Bible Conference, concurrently with the Chautauqua sessions will be much more satisfactory than last year's attempt to conduct it simultaneously with the Conference.

The Chautauqua has only afternoon and evening sessions, and the School will have most of its classwork in the forenoon. Both it and the Chautauqua will begin on Monday, July 23, following the last session of the Bible Conference on Sunday.

Talent is Strong

Programs of the Chautauqua were distributed and the high quality of the talent received great approval. There will be four lectures, four concerts, three plays and three variety entertainments, Monday to Friday inclusive, July 23-27. The plays will be "To the Ladies," "Gaulthier Through," and "Mother's Millions," presented by the Germann Play Company, and the Randall Entertainers.

Last night's unanimous enthusiasm for these outstanding features of Dixon's summer cultural and recreational life indicated the splendid spirit of progress and optimism among the churches, as well as the effective possibilities of so convenient an agency for joint sponsorship and promotion of worth-while projects and enterprise. The Federated Council is rapidly proving itself to be.

Two Men Shot Today in Mo. Mine Riots

PARTY HARMONY PLEA PREVENTS WET-DRY FIGHT

Spirit of Conciliation Permeated Session of Democratic Party

By JAMES L. WEST (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Houston, June 29—(AP)—The spirit of conciliation which has pervaded the Democratic National Convention from the first was strong enough to carry through the party platform without a fight over the law enforcement plank, which had been threatened for several days.

Both the ultra dries and the wets gave way in the interest of party harmony with the result that the convention approved a dry plank pledging the party and its nominees to "an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

This plank was a compromise between that supported at the outset by the Smith forces and that proposed by such dry leaders as Gov.

A RADIO CAMPAIGN.

The radio will play an important part in the presidential campaign of 1928. It goes without saying that it will be utilized to an extent far greater than in any other campaign, because it has been developed to a higher degree of efficiency in broadcasting and receiving. This will be the test of how completely it serves the purpose as a substitute for personal appearance of speakers.

It is not out of place now to recall the fight made in congress against placing control of radio in the hands of the secretary of commerce. President, Coolidge was opposed to creating a new body to deal with this new interest, when a government department already was at hand, which could deal in an expert manner with the problems arising. In congress was a group that fought for creation of the separate boy. It was opposed to giving the secretary of commerce the power involved. It was suspected that opposition was to giving the power to a particular secretary of commerce, who might be a figure in the coming campaign, rather than to the department of commerce as a going concern from one administration to another.

Mr. Hoover showed no personal desire to shoulder all the radio problems that were hanging over the body that was to be empowered. He sided with his chief, of course, but when there came an opportunity to compromise, and to allow a commission to have full charge for a year while the principal controversies were being adjusted, he stood for the compromise. The last congress extended the period another year, probably giving much relief to the secretary of commerce.

Surmises of those who feared that Mr. Hoover would be a conspicuous figure in the campaign of 1928 proved correct. His opponents worked to his advantage, however, when they relieved him of the grief connected with readjustments.

In advance of the campaign it does not appear that one candidate will have any advantage over another in the use of the radio for reaching the people. Even if the secretary had full power, we think he would have been the last to take advantage of it.

By use of the radio the people are being taken into the national conventions. Even the amplifiers, which have been developed along the radio, are a distinct advantage in large conventions. Without these inventions persons having seats in convention halls heard only half of the proceedings. Now the voices are carried to remote parts of halls and to the streets where people congregate without advantage of tickets to the big show.

The radio was used to some extent four years ago, but chain broadcasting had not been developed to the degree we now have it. "Spellbinders" have not been completely displaced. They are going to be needed to enthrall persons in the mass. Only by such means are workers brought to their fullest degree of efficiency. Speakers must do the work of political evangelists. The radio is a means of informing the voter in the home, but more than that is needed to get him into action, and action is what counts in a political campaign, not words alone.

Because of these developments this is going to be an interesting campaign in many years.

George Gershwin, composer of "Rhapsody in Blue," is writing a new symphony and is using automobile horns to furnish the inspiration. He ought to call this one "Rhapsody in Blue language."

Henry Ford, according to dispatches from England, believes in "free trade all around." But, gosh! you can't trade one of those 1922 Fords for anything, unless it be old razor blades.

Headlines you never see: "No, I Never Read Books," Says Movie Star.

Sometimes when the ladies pause to look into the store windows they are merely pausing for reflection.

Keeping to the straight and narrow path is becoming increasingly difficult these days—if you're a pedestrian.

The Missionary Society will meet this week Thursday with Mrs. F. H. Mynard.

Mrs. Cecil Fraizer returned from the Amboy Hospital Sunday with her infant daughter.

Gladys Howard Ross is home from the Alton Military school for the summer.

Attorney M. P. Thornton of Worthington, Minn., well known here is the Republican candidate for county judge of Jackson County.

The personnel of the school faculty for next year is as follows, Superintendent, W. S. Mong, Franklin Grove; Principal, Mrs. D. R. Mynard, Coach, T. W. Blaser, Coal Valley; 7th and 8th Grades, Cornelia Conibear, Intermediate Grades, Lois Bradford, Franklin Grove; Primary, Ruth Slaymaker, Erie.

Mrs. Roy Conibear entertained twenty-five young ladies Thursday afternoon with a shower in honor of Sara Mishong, a bride of the near future. Miss Dishong was the recipient of many beautiful and useful articles to equip her dining room and kitchen. A "Hard Romance" in which the name of a metal was to be inserted in a blank left for that purpose and a page of "Advice to the Bride" tested the intellect of the guests.

Two courses of delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, a cupid decorating the center of the table and an umbrella appearing on each slice of cake served with the ice cream.

Messrs. Swan Sandberg, L. S. Snyder, Andrew Mortenson, Dell Draper and George Newell spent the week end in New Bedford, fishing in the canal. They brought home over one hundred pounds of fine fish, among them a catfish weighing 11½ pounds. A "fish" story, but true.

Despite the pouring rain the Odd-fellows and Rebekahs decorated the following graves at Lee Center: L. E. Lippincott, Andrew Aschenbrenner, Thero A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Haskell, E. M. MARYE and 'MOM' Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Mom, dear:

You made me sort of homesick, writing as you did about homemade preserves and cookie jars, and I suspect you may have done it on purpose.

Now I can buy here preserves that are good enough for anybody—and cookies too—but just the thought of yours did make you awfully vivid for a few minutes.

Alan says he hopes you will send some preserves, as he thinks you make the best in the world. I pass on the suggestion, knowing that you love to humor my husband's whims. And if you should send some, Alan will not enjoy them alone. I promise you that.

And now for a few generous pats on my shoulder—I have confided to Alan the secret urge of my life, to take this job at Madame Elsie's shop, and we have come to terms. It was not difficult at all.

I didn't know very much about Jane Smith when we modeled together, or when she first called me over to luncheon at her house—to talk over our plans—and I realized as I entered the Spanish dwelling with an honest-to-goodness patio that is she was the daughter of that establishment she didn't need the small amount we are to receive from modeling.

It appears she is one of these poor little rich girls who honestly wants a career—not as an artist, but as a business woman. She is crazy to have her own shop here, and she thinks her father probably will back her in one.

It occurred to her that a good way to find out how a shop is run is to work in a good one for a while.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HALL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNUCK

"Giddap there, shark," one Tiny cried. "You're giving us a dandy ride. We don't know where we're heading for, but neither do we care."

"Tis fun to travel on like this, that is, if nothing goes amiss. We all are feeling very good out in this nice fresh air."

Thus Dairyland was left behind but not a Tiny seemed to mind. The shark swam through the water, and it pulled the boat real fast. Said Clowdy "Gee, what would we do if he should bite our rope in two?" But nothing like this happened, and an hour or so went past.

"Oh, look, we're coming up a bend. It surely is not the end of this fine ride," yelled Carpy. "It would spoil a wondrous thrill!"

They could see that he was wrong as the could be. The stream just took a sudden turn and went on, farther still.

That was her real object in accepting Madame Elsie's job.

She is a very interesting girl, not exactly pretty, but quite smart—and quite a type; looks rather like a Russian—tall, slim, and dark, but she says she is straight American on both sides of the house.

Incidentally too, she confessed that her father made most of his money during the late war, and that she inherited from him an interest in money-making that only can be satisfied with a shop of her own. Her father is so wealthy that Alan has great respect for his name. So when I told him I had lunched with Jason Smith's daughter he was quite impressed—Alan is a climber—and later,

All of a sudden, Mister Shark decided he would end the lark. Perhaps the pulling made him tired. He jumped with all his might, and let the rope fly into air, and caused a momentary scare. "He's gone," exclaimed wee Carpy as the shark swam out of sight.

"That's just our luck," somebody said. "Now we must work to move ahead. Let's take turns at the paddle." Then the bunch heard Scouty roar, "Say, look ahead. See what I see! Why, we're as lucky as can be."

The Tinymites all looked and saw some monkeys up on shore.

The monkeys then amused the crowd. They hopped around and squealed aloud. "Let's land," exclaimed one Tiny. "We can surely have some fun." And so they made their houseboat glide up on the beach and Coppy cried, "Oh, look, the monkeys see us. They are brave. They do not run."

when I suggested that, as a lark, we were actually going to model in a real shop for a week or so, he took it like a lamb.

Aren't you proud of me? MARYE.

NEXT: Marry models.

Dandelions are able to maintain their supremacy in the greensward because of the fleshy roots that live from year to year and the trouble-making habit of producing flowers and seeds so close to the ground as to be entirely out of reach of the mower blades.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS ENCOURAGEMENT OF YOUNG RING ARTISTS IS AIM

State Commission in Move to Promote Amateur Bouts

(Telegraph Special Service)
Chicago, June 29.—To encourage youthful boxers and wrestlers in these particular classes of sport, the Illinois Athletic Commission is sending out a circular letter to all gymnasiums, amateur shows, Y. M. C. A.'s and other gathering places throughout the state. The open letter to all young boxers explaining the establishment of a department for their assistance is as follows:

Young boxers are often confronted with many perplexing questions, which are of vital importance to them and have great bearing upon their future. That is the reason this Commission is anxious and willing to help you, and we invite you to come and see us or write us at any time that you feel the need of help or advice on any matter that may confront you, and upon which you are in doubt.

Your future depends entirely upon how you handle yourself, both as to proper living, environment and your associations. Many young boxers who have bright prospects before them, are lured by greedy and unscrupulous persons into the signing of contracts with them as managers. Young boxers cannot give this matter too careful consideration and should beware of such persons, who have not your success at heart, but only a desire for their own private gain. These persons take young boxers and often overmatch them, due to the fact that they are not capable of giving you proper instructions as to training and are not well enough versed to properly match you, resulting in many set backs and possibly ruination of your chances for future success. Many times these mistakes result in young boxers becoming mental and physical wrecks.

On the other hand if the young boxer is brought along properly and carefully watched by a manager who knows his business and has your interest at heart, you will sooner or later be successful, providing you are made of the right stuff.

A manager who has your interest at heart would not be backward in telling you that you ought to quit boxing if he felt that you were not qualified instead of continuing to match you and get you beaten, with a chance of ruining your physical as well as mental health.

This office is anxious to help young boxers and we will be pleased to aid you in every way possible and give you proper advice on all matters which you may bring to our attention. It is our earnest desire to raise the standard of boxing in this state and to keep it free from questionable characters, in order that the sport may enjoy the confidence of the public to which it is entitled.

Therefore, we again urge that you consult with us at any or all times when you are in doubt.

There is no charge whatsoever for this information, the only desire of this Commission being to help you in order that you may make a success of your chosen profession. This Commission has your welfare and future success at heart. Take advantage of this.

Hennessey Wins His Match at Wimbledon

Wimbledon, Eng., June 29.—(AP)—Smiling Johnny Hennessey, hard hitting young American Davis Cup star, reached the quarter finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament today by vanishing the German, F. Frenz 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, on the center court before a big gallery.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY FAST

Here's one way to make money fast—change a CENT into a DIME in four strokes. One solution is on page 11.

C	E	N	T
D	I	M	E

THE RULES

1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in four strokes, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN in three strokes. COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2.—You can change only one letter at a time.

3.—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Change words and abbreviations don't count.

4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 11.

Conqueror of Bobby Jones in National Open

Johnny Farrell didn't cry with joy when he beat Bobby Jones by one stroke in the play-off round of 36 holes and when the national open golf championship but the boy carried his clubs around the Chicago course for four hard and trying days did let go with the tears. Little Harold Holtz (on the right above) was so overcome with emotion when his hero sunk a long putt on the last green and won the title that he couldn't do a thing but sprinkle some tears among his freckles and admit that he felt great to be a champion's right hand man.

At the left is a closeup of the young New York professional, who with a ten-foot putt on the last green, won the national open golf championship. Jones and Farrell tied with a 294 each in 72 holes and in the play off Farrell turned in a 143 to 144 for Jones. The title has an estimated value of more than $50,000 a year to a professional. In addition to the national title, Farrell won a $1500 prize for being the best dressed golfer in the tournament.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)
New York—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, defeated Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, (10) Tiger Payne, Australia, won over Joe Monte, Boston, foul (6). Osk Till, Buffalo, and Sunny Jim Williams, New York, drew (10). George Hoffman, New York, beat Vinko Jakasa, Jugo Slavia (4).

Oil burning vessels are blamed for wholesale slaughter of fish.

4 to 3, wee Willie Sherdel hanging up his sixth successive victory. Homers by Chick Hefey and Frankie Frisch in the seventh decided the issue.

Joe Genewich outpitched Ray Benge and Claude Willoughby as the New York Ginals made it five in a row over the Phils, 2 to 1, in a bitter pitcher's battle in which each team made but four hits.

LOUGHRAN WINS ON DECISION IN MEDIocre SCRAP

Emanuel Dropped His First Fight in Two Years

June 29.—(AP)—Armand Emanuel, bronzed young battler from the West Coast, today smarted under his first defeat in two years but took consolation out of the fact that it was no less than a champion that gave it to him.

Making his second eastern appearance, Emanuel dropped the decision to Tommy Loughran, king of the light heavyweight, in a slow ten round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

Three drinks of water made the bout a non-titular affair. Originally Loughran had been scheduled to meet Jimmy Slattery in defense of his title but the Buffalo contender suffered an injury in training and was forced to call off the bout. Loughran then agreed to take on Emanuel but stipulated that the San Francisco barrier must come in over the light heavyweight limit. The three glasses of water, consumed just before Emanuel weighed in put him a pound over the class limit of 175 pounds.

This caution of Tommy's part plus a rather indifferent showing during the bout itself led some of the 6,000 customers to "ride" him throughout the bout and remain to jeer when the decision was announced.

5c MAKES YOU A SMOKE KING

—if you know the cigar to buy

Don't ever let anybody tell you there's no enjoyment in a 5c cigar. Here's one that's been knocking that idea sky-high for many years: Havana Ribbon. Any challengers?

Nickel cigar brands come and go. But Havana Ribbon keeps right on winning smokers by the thousands. Unquestionably the greatest five-cent cigar value the world has ever known! But let Havana Ribbon tell you its own story. One nickel brings it to you. One puff starts it. And the first thing it says is that here actually is a five-cent cigar that contains something you usually find only in higher priced cigars: Ripe, long-ripe tobacco. No bitter, under-ripe top leaves of the plant. No flat-tasting, over-ripe bottom leaves. No loose ends to fray or crumble. Full-flavored, mellow-mild ripe leaves only. Smoke so smooth you like to hold on to every satisfying mouthful! At cigar counters everywhere. Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

C. C. COMMITTEE ON PUBLICITY'S MONTHLY REPORT

Much Done to Bring Dixon Before Public in June

A report of the activities of the committee on Advertising and Publicity of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce has been submitted to President Ray Kline by J. Frank Bennett, its chairman, a summary of the report being:

Interviewed two concerns and wrote five concerns regarding locating in Dixon. Interviewed Industrial Agents of Illinois Central and Chicago & N. Western Railroads, and enlisted their assistance in this connection. We have printed and ready for distribution 10,000, 16-page booklets describing Dixon.

Secured half column in Chicago Journal of Commerce in "Along the Highway" by W. G. Sibley, also news item in Chicago Journal of Commerce, quarter column.

Ordered thirty steel signs installed on six highways at 5 mile intervals, anchored to 8 ft. steel posts, installation to be completed by July 15.

Talked to Boy Scouts that visited Dixon, regarding the district and gave them booklets.

Wrote 100 letters to business men in Dixon, calling their attention to booklets.

French Blacksmith,

Oxy. France —(AP)—The blacksmith is still a mighty man in this village, although he recently celebrated his one hundredth anniversary. Shell Motor Oil—

Used by Bremen Transatlantic Flyers

—equally dependable
in motors like yours

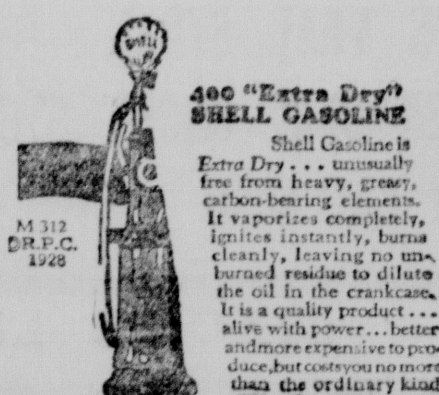

Ocean-spanning planes, speeding cars, heavy trucks and busses have proved the stamina, endurance and dependability of Shell Motor Oil—it "stands the gaff."

Speedier, better cars—more and better roads—have made faster, longer, harder driving the order of the day. BUT—will your motor oil stand the gaff? Will it withstand the punishment of gruelling trips and bring your car back home with the motor safe and unharmed?

The hardest service in passenger cars is child's play for Shell Motor Oil. When you consider that it helped make possible the first non-stop East to West transatlantic flight—when you consider that it withstands all the punishment that heavy trucks and busses, thundering along streets and highways, can give it, you can readily understand why thousands of motorists driving cars like yours demand Shell Motor Oil, and will use no other.

The proper lubrication of your car is more vital today than ever before. Why take a chance, when Shell, the proven, dependable oil, is available—at Shell yellow-red service stations and Shell dealers conveniently located everywhere?

Indians Anticipating Rich Tourist Harvest

Glacier Park, Mont. —(AP)—Indians who ceded this region to Uncle Sam are wearing broad grins. They expect to get some of their money back from tourists during the vacation season.

Superintendent Eakin of Glacier National Park predicts that 50,000 travelers will pass through the park within the next three months and the Indians are counting on a heavy trade in souvenirs.

The increased interest in western tourist travel is attributed in a measure to the fact that several national conventions are being held on the Pacific Coast during June, July and August. The Glacier Park hotel reports more individual reservations so far than in any previous year.

THE SEVEN AGES OF AL SMITH

① The Sidewalks of New York—Al Smith as a boy.

② The Fishmarket Clerk—Al when he got his first job.

③ The Assemblyman—Smith in politics, in 1903.

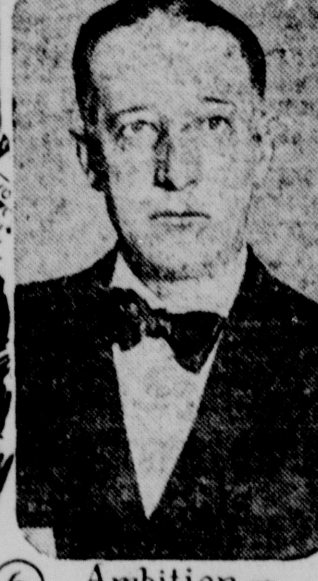

⑦ ALFRED E. SMITH

④ The Alderman—Smith in 1917, before becoming Governor.

⑤ The Brown Derby—Smith in 1922, running for re-election.

⑥ Ambition—Seeking the presidency in 1924.

A newsboy on the sidewalks of New York, Alfred E. Smith has risen to become governor of the Empire State for four terms, a presidential aspirant and idol of millions in the metropolis.

He has a personality that appeals to the masses. Probably no man in public life since the heyday of Theodore Roosevelt has had such a hold on the nation's largest city. He has a human touch that seems to make the man on the street feel that he is "one of the people."

Countless thousands know him as just plain "Al."

He has devoted the best years of his life as legislator, speaker of the assembly and governor, to studying the government of his state. He is credited with having a more intimate knowledge of his affairs than any other person.

In one of his inaugural addresses he said: "This assembly chamber was my education, my high school, my college and virtually my all." He had to quit school when in his teens and help support his widowed mother.

Honesty Unquestioned

His personal honesty has never been seriously questioned, even in the heat of bitter campaigns, although he is closely identified with an organization—Tammany Hall—that often is excoriated for its alleged corruption.

While he is known for his genial good nature, a ready smile and quick wit, he is a powerful, hard-hitting fighter, when once aroused. His lively battles with William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, have made political history. He has acquired the title of "The Happy Warrior."

In the field of national politics, in which he is a novice, he has encountered strong opposition in his own party largely because of his frank stand against prohibition and his Tammany relations. This developed openly in the memorable deadlock convention in Madison Square Garden, New York, when he was defeated for the presidential nomination.

He fought William Jennings Bryan and later reviled in kind.

Alfred Emanuel Smith was born in the shadow of old Brooklyn Bridge on the teeming East Side of New York, Dec. 30, 1873. His father, who was in the trucking business, died when he was 13 years old and he had to leave school. Park Row heard his cries of "Wuxtry!" for a time and then he clerked in a fish market.

Years afterward, when a well informed person asked him what his college degree was he replied—"F. P. M.—Fulton Fish Market."

Amateur Actor

Popular in his polyglot neighborhood, Smith attracted attention in amateur theatricals. Soon he came under the eye of Tom Foley, an old time Tammany leader, who started him at the bottom rung of the political ladder as a clerk in the office of the commissioner of jurors.

He took to politics as a duck takes to water and in 1903 was elected to the state assembly. He took his job seriously and staid up nights mastering the details of every bill introduced. He was re-elected again and again, becoming floor leader and later speaker of the house. In 1915 he was one of the leading spirits in a famous constitutional convention, presided over by Elihu Root.

Then came an interval when he left legislative halls to be elected sheriff of New York and later president of the board of aldermen of his home city. Smith's record pluralities attracted attention and he began to be mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate. In 1918 he won the nomination and defeated Governor Charles S. Whitman, republican, by 12,000 votes. This was an outstanding achievement in a republican state. It also was the fifteenth time he had run for public office without being defeated.

Two years later however, he met his first defeat, Nathan L. Miller winning the election for governor in the Harding presidential landslide. But Smith ran one million votes ahead of his ticket.

On Port Board

Governor Miller named Smith as a member of the newly created Port of New York Authority, of which he was the outstanding figure. Meantime, he accepted the presidency of a large trucking corporation. Came a day when William Randolph Hearst began to exert a powerful influence over the state democracy and become a candidate for governor. Against his wishes Smith was drafted to do battle. In a sensational convention at Syracuse, he not only pushed the publisher into the discard but was himself nominated. He defeated Governor Miller by 355,000 votes, a record breaking plurality, then.

In 1924 he was again re-elected, defeating Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and in 1926 he defeated Orden L. Mills, thus becoming the first man in the history of the state to be elected to the governor's chair for four times.

Smith's victories have been remarkable personal tributes, for in most cases the rest of the ticket has been republican. The governor has sponsored numerous welfare measures, such as widow's pensions and child labor laws. He also has championed legislation favorable to organized labor. His intimate knowledge of the state has caused him to fight successfully for a reorganization of the state government, by which many commissions were abolished or consolidated. By many, this is regarded as his outstanding achievement.

He first attracted national attention at the democratic national convention at San Francisco when he was a "favorite son" candidate for president. The convention paid him a tribute by singing the old-time, lilting melody, "The Sidewalks of New York," which later became his campaign song.

In 1924 at the national democratic convention in New York city he and William G. McAdoo deadlocked the delegates for 103 ballots until finally John W. Davis was chosen as a compromise candidate.

Is Against Prohibition

The governor has consistently opposed prohibition. He has favored light wines and beer but is opposed to a return of the saloon. When he signed the Mullen-Gage act, doing away with state enforcement of the Volstead Act, he was strongly criticized in many sections of the country. Many newspapers declared that by this act New York state had voted itself out of the union.

Personally, the governor is a man of charm and is always surrounded by admirers. Newspaper men like to "cover" him. He is always good "news" and he has the habit of coining epigrams that catch popular fancy. Although burdened with responsibilities, he has never ceased being a boy. He delights to go to the circus with neighborhood children and eat peanuts with them. Once a year he eats chicken with the city's newsmen. He established a zoo at the executive mansion in Albany and takes pleasure in watching the antics of monkeys, bears, tigers and other animals that have been presented to him.

In his spare moments he likes to play golf. He describes himself as a "Civil War player"—out in '61 and back in '65. He reads the Bible and state documents and not much else. He has often told with great glee of a woman who asked him the name of his favorite book and his reply: "The Life and Works of John L. Sullivan." But as a matter of fact he never witnessed a prize fight.

Columbia University gave him the degree of Doctor of Laws and President Nicholas Murray Butler, in conferring it, described him as "trained in the hard school of the many-sided and cosmopolitan life; alert, public-spirited, courageous and constantly speaking the true voice of the people."

He married Catherine A. Dunn, a neighbor on the East Side and has five children. Until his home was torn down, he lived for many years in Oliver Street, in the heart of the East Side, surrounded by thousands of neighbors of foreign birth, who called him "Al."

There are houses in England the windows of which have never been counted; these include Windsor Castle and Wentworth Woodhouse, the Yorkshire home of Earl Fitzwilliam.

The woolsock on which the Lord Chancellor sits is a bag of wool covered with red cloth. It is to remind him of the original source of England's national income—wool.

It is estimated that 70,000,000 people speak French.

Ohio Chief to Call on European Firemen

Cleveland—(AP)—George A. Wallace, Cleveland's 80-year-old chief, is going to Europe for a vacation. He plans to have a visit with his friend the chief of Dublin's fire department and say hello to the chief of the Paris fire department, and he hopes to see a good blaze while he is away.

Wallace entered the Cleveland department in 1869 and became its head in 1901.

He is acquainted with many of the fire chiefs of European capitals and is looking forward to renewing friendships as he travels.

"That Dublin chief has a red beard," he said. "He can swear more eloquently at a fire than any man I ever met."

"The chief of the Paris department is a mighty nice fellow. I remember he asked me how we fed our men at a fire. I said there was no trouble about that. He wanted to know if they were allowed to go home for their meals during a fire. He said that firemen in Paris go home for their meals whether there is a fire or not. I suppose they work in relays. Anyway, I'll find out."

France Puts Brakes

on Many Freight Cars

Paris—(AP)—France is finally getting around to air brakes on freight trains, ten years after such a program was written into the peace treaty. Some 250,000 cars—half of the French rolling stock—will be equipped, partly through German reparations.

French industry fought the plan to order from Germany equipment that will cost $64,000,000 during the next six years. It has been agreed two-fifths of the business shall go to French manufacturers and three-fifths obtained from Germany as reparations. An American type of brake is to be used.

Film coating made from wood fibre cellulose instead of gelatin may revolutionize photographic methods. It is said to permit ten minute development, including drying of the wet negative.

Rochelle, June 29—A meeting of the Rock River Valley Photographers

Club was held here at the beautiful new Gullickson Studio on Thursday evening, June 28. Harry Elton, of the Eastman Kodak Co., of Rochester, N. Y., gave demonstrations and information for the photographers. The host, Paul Gullickson, also arranged for a banquet at the Collier Inn preceding the session in the studio. Rochelle, through its enterprising council and under the direction of Commissioner D. W. Taylor and the sponsoring of the Rochelle Business Mens Association is arranging for the dedication of "Spring Lake," the new city owned bathing lagoon and recreation park with a water carnival to be held here, Thursday, August 2nd.

Plans according to the committee headed by Tom O'Neil and C. A. Anderson will include fancy diving and swimming events, straight races for all classes, a band concert including the initiation of the dance pavilion.

Under the direction of Mr. Taylor the lake has been drained by the use of pumps, trucks and a cleaning force, and has now been allowed to refill from the natural springs. Dangerous ledges were removed and retaining walls built and concrete pillars bearing ornamental light posts

THE FIRST WOMAN to cross the Atlantic by plane, Miss Amelia Earhart is pictured here in nyming and remaining attire. RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

CHAPTER I
BERTIE LOU stood on the brink of the great adventure. She was thrilled to the core of her youth-firm, little body. And no one guessed it.

Her own mother had not been permitted to see behind the mask of sophistication she wore to conceal her shy, dreaming soul. And not even Rod had known how happy she was.

For Bertie Lou would not talk about it. She was afraid of being sappy. So she posed behind an armor of boots and jibes for the weakness of sentiment. It was the code of her day among her friends.

But tonight she could not jeer at her happiness. It made her feel like a traitor to the other girls—this being so old-fashionedly palpitating and concerned. "Wouldn't they razz me!" she thought.

She knew she ought to be asleep. Marriage was a million years old—nothing to get excited about. And she was excited. No use trying to be blasé for her own benefit. Not on this, her last night as Bertie Lou Ward. Tomorrow she would become Mrs. Rod Bryer.

She let herself dwell upon the event with much the same thoughts that might have filled the mind of any maiden of yore on the eve of her wedding day. The influence of her friends melted away before the wonder in her heart—the thousand questions, the fears and eagerness.

That was only for tonight. The next day she would be modern again—a clear-eyed, know-what-it's-all-about miss. No one would have to know that she had been misty-eyed and hesitantly prayerful the night before—just like any sap who believed in fairy tales.

She thought of the advice one 17-year-old Solon had given her: "Don't let it get you, Bertie Lou. If you don't like it you can chuck it, you know."

"But it does get you—no matter how wise you are," Bertie Lou whispered into the warm darkness of her room. And that was the nearest she ever had come to wisdom.

SHE lay a little longer, lost in the enchantment of standing on the threshold of a new life, before the heat of the summer night pressed unbearably in upon her. The little breeze that had sprung up at sundown had died down again. Her room had grown sultry since she had gone to bed.

Bertie Lou threw back the sheet that covered her and slipped her sun-tanned legs over the edge of the bed. She felt around with her toes for her old mules and thrust her feet into them.

They clattered a little as she crossed the bare floor and groped her way down the hall to the stairs. Her mother called to her: "Bertie Lou, is that you?"

Bertie Lou halted in surprise. Her mother was a sound sleeper. But Bertie Lou did not know what it meant to have a little girl getting married on the morrow.

Rod, who kissed her as if he'd been hungry all his life for her lips.

"The whole water supply is hot enough to boil an egg," Bertie Lou replied, and went down the stairs on the banister. She didn't do this for sport—it was too old a habit for that—but to save time.

She made a glass of lemonade for her mother after she'd had her own and started back upstairs with it. On the way she passed the hall door leading to the dining room and a sudden wish to take a peek at the wedding presents seized her.

She put the lemonade on a stand and opened the door. The light from the hall shone in upon the gift-covered dining table and Bertie Lou stood looking at the array with great pleasure in the generosity of her friends.

Since the family supper on the screened back porch she had been too busy to view the gifts and she did not know that one had arrived which she had not yet seen.

It was encased in a leather oblong with gold satin lining. Mrs. Ward had put it down on the edge of the table, with the case open. The light struck softly on a dull bronze blade and caught Bertie Lou's eyes.

"Eureka! Another one!" she ejaculated and went in to examine it and the card of the sender. "A funny wedding present," she thought, picking it up. "Sharp as the devil!" Then she looked at the card.

"Miss Lila Marsh."

Bertie Lou dropped the paper cutter quickly into the case. Her face, already flushed with heat and excitement, grew a trifle warmer in color and her eyes darkened. Always the name of Lila Marsh affected her in some way. If others were present she managed somehow to keep a poker face but if, as now, she was unobserved, she showed her true feelings toward the girl who had refused to marry Rod.

The rich blood in her cheeks betokened consciousness of Lila's importance and the darkened eyes expressed her will to stand firmly on her own ground.

She was Rod's girl now. Lila belonged to his past. Moderns didn't trouble about a person's past. That is, they didn't acknowledge that they did. But Bertie Lou knew Lila—had known her for years. Lila was a menace. She'd always played the game by her own rules. She never gave another girl a sporting chance.

BERTIE LOU wasn't going to be jealous of Rod's past. But his future belonged to her, at least insofar as Lila was concerned. Lila had had her chance. She'd turned Rod down because he wasn't making enough money. And she couldn't see any chance for a book-keeper in Wayville to leap into a fortune.

Of course it was all right for Lila to send a present. Bertie Lou conceded that. But why a dagger? From anyone else it would have meant nothing. But coming from Lila it might mean anything.

That was what Bertie Lou didn't know. Lila hadn't gone steadily with any boy since Rod. But she wasn't lonely by any means. She was popular. What if she wanted Rod?

Bertie Lou had openly subscribed to that overworked declaration about keeping no strings on anyone. "If he wants to go, he may. If any other girl can take him, she's welcome."

That was before she fell in love with Rod. Now she knew that a possessive, fighting strain ran side by side with her pride.

She would keep Rod if she could. And she couldn't see how any girl could stop loving him. She didn't believe Lila had. Lila had instilled the idea by a pose of sadness, and frequent wistful references to a great mistake.

BERTIE LOU slammed the door of the dining room with a bang. Lila had spoiled her night.

When she offered the lemonade to her mother Mrs. Ward said: "Your hand is hot, honey; don't you feel well?"

"It's awfully close, Mums; do you think it will rain tomorrow?" Bertie Lou evaded.

"Maybe it will rain before morning and cool things off. Can't you sleep?"

"I'm too excited"—that was a slip—"I mean there are so many darned things to think about when you have a wedding. I wish Rod and I had eloped. What a lot of trouble it will save when people who want to get married just walk up to a mountain top and shout their union to the four winds."

She had raised her voice. Her father, sleeping beside her mother, stirred restlessly. Bertie Lou became quiet.

"Want me to come and talk to you?" her mother whispered anxiously. It had disappointed her vaguely that Bertie Lou had not come to her with confidences and questions.

"You need your sleep, Mums. I'll read," Bertie Lou replied and slipped out of the room. Back in her own flower-papered bower, stripped of rugs and hangings for coolness, she threw her pillows down by the window and knelt upon them, arms crossed on the window sill, curly head upon them.

It was more restful than her bed. And the orchestration of myriad summer insects soothed her. She didn't believe she would sleep that night.

AT six her mother woke her, scolding. "You'll be as stiff as a ramrod. Go and take a hot bath, real hot. Yes, I know it's a hot day, but you do as I say. Cool off with a shower if you like but don't stand there rubbing your eyes out."

Mother feelings hiding behind bustling authority.

Bertie Lou had a better idea. She went down and put on a phonograph record and limbered up with the Black Bottom and a stomp. Then she took the hot bath, and poured the last quarter bottle of bath salts into the tub. Her mother didn't like them. She might as well luxuriate. Couldn't pack a nearly empty bottle.

She was well steeped in rose perfume by the time she was ready for the cold shower.

Then came breakfast. It was slightly cooler on the shaded porch and Bertie Lou's mother had provided iced honeydew with lemon. A bit over his second cup of coffee, and then took himself off to his carpenter shop to work until time to come back and dress for the wedding. He wanted to say something to Bertie Lou. He didn't know what it was but a man didn't have a young daughter getting married every day. He felt he ought to say something. And he said nothing because these half-naked young animals of the present day confused him.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

ACROSS town another rather felt the same way. Mr. Bryer wanted to have a frank, heart-to-heart talk with Rod, but he couldn't speak his son's language and he dreaded to be laughed at. Besides, he had a suspicion that his offspring knew more than he did anyhow.

Rod's mother would have given anything to tell Bertie Lou how to make Rod happy, but she didn't dare. Bertie Lou was little and sweet but she was no clinging vine and Mrs. Bryer knew she would make a man happy in her own way or not at all.

The wedding was to be at 10 o'clock in the morning. That would permit Rod and his bride to take the best train to the resort in the hills, where they were to spend two weeks of their honeymoon during Rod's vacation.

At eight the florists came and decorated the house. It did not take more than half an hour to do it. But it was pretty even if it wasn't a garden of costly blooms. Rod and Bertie Lou had been busy the evening before with white ribbon and lace paper bells, potted plants and vines.

It was an old house with large rooms and high ceilings. Bertie Lou had been born in it and her mother wanted her to be married under the same roof. Bertie Lou hoped people wouldn't suffocate. She wanted to have the altar built under the great elm tree at the corner of the lot, but Mrs. Ward said it was too public.

Well, Bertie Lou reflected, it would be a short ceremony. Then they could all go out to the long veranda where the buffet breakfast was to be served, while she and Rod drove away to the station.

AS Bertie Lou surveyed the completed work of the florists she felt her throat tightening over a lump that choked her. Maybe you could break up your marriage if you didn't like it, but you'd never have the same chance for happiness again, she felt.

She couldn't imagine Rod wanting a divorce—Rod, who kissed her as if he'd been hungry all his life for her lips.

She had heard, however, girls talking about the technique of the boys. Their attendance at the movies had not been in vain, it was agreed.

Had Rod ever kissed Lila like that? If he had then he could some day kiss a third girl—or would she be only a third?—the same way.

BERTIE LOU swallowed the lump in her throat. What was the use? You couldn't read the future. She closed her eyes a moment and relived Rod's good night to her. It still sent delicious shivers along her spine. He had kissed her eyes, her lips, her hair, her throat.

She was brought to earth by her mother's voice, calling her to some small task in the kitchen. Bertie Lou worked there and all over the house until the bridesmaids appeared. Then she went upstairs with them, not to come down again until the wedding march summoned her.

Most of the things for her trip were packed. One of the girls checked off a list she had made to use as suggestions for Bertie Lou. It saved her overlooking her handkerchiefs. The others put on their own dresses, pale green organdie, and then helped Bertie Lou into her wedding dress.

Bertie Lou was little and sweet, but she was no clinging vine.

She could not fail to look beautiful. The white tulle was like the spirit of her youth. Soft, yet firmly crisp, supple and alive. Her hair, half red, half brown, framed her eager, sparkling countenance like a rich golden crown of heavy swirls.

She did not wear a veil, only a small wreath of white rosebuds, like the bouquet she was to carry in her arms.

THE girls heard her mother come up the stairs and go into her room when they'd finished fastening the wreath. Then she called to Bertie Lou and the girl went to her. The instant she was gone an excited chatter broke out among the bridesmaids.

"Isn't she sweet! Rod's in luck! I wonder how Lila will feel when she sees her! She's coming, isn't she? I guess so. Bertie Lou couldn't refuse to ask her. Darned if I would! Then you'd have everybody saying she had your coat. I should worry my extra weight off about that!"

Bertie Lou was coming back, but they did not hear her.

"I don't believe Bertie Lou needs to worry about Lila Marsh!" . . . "Oh, you don't? Well, I do. I'd worry if that mantrap had an interest in my man!" . . . "But she hasn't an interest in Rod. She gave him the gate!" . . . "Yes, but we all know why. He didn't have enough money for a husband. . . . Oh, Belle, shut up! That's rotten!"

Belle shrugged. "It is! So's life then. Give me a cigarette. If Lila wants Rod she'll have him eating out of her hand. Bertie Lou's too soft."

Another voice joined in. "I wonder if Bertie Lou likes being second love?" Someone turned on this speaker. "For Pete's sake, Marcella, do you want to have to teach a guy how to make love?"

"I don't want the girl I learned on right under my nose!" Marcella retorted. "He might have a relapse, or something."

OUTSIDE the door a bride's faltering footsteps paused, hesitated between flight and entry, paused again, and Bertie Lou walked in among them.

"Mother says we must hurry," she said, as though she hadn't heard a word. They were slightly uncomfortable, not being sure about it. But extreme compassion and tenderness still lay ahead of them. It did not trouble them much to hurt a few feelings. Life was like that—brutal—they would tell you.

BERTIE LOU'S fingers were like ice when someone handed her the bridal bouquet. The minister had come, her mother had been in to say she would go down and have Miss Eustace, the church organist, begin the wedding march. Bertie Lou was ready.

But her heart had grown heavy. Words rang in her head. Second love. Second choice, perhaps. And at her wedding there would be a girl, laughing at her maybe, who could have stood in her place had she so desired.

"Bertie Lou, you'll have to put on some rouge," one of the girls cried suddenly. "You're as pale as a ghost." Bertie Lou submitted, her eyes closed, while they dabbed her cheeks in their skillful way with artificial color.

Then the strains of "Lohengrin" stole softly up to her and she moved with her attendants toward the door. When she reached the top of the stairs she knew a wild impulse to rush back into her room, to tear the rosebuds from her hair and cry her heart out.

Mechanically she moved down the stairs. "Here comes the bride, second choice, here comes the bride, second choice," kept time in her head to the music.

But when she entered the double doors of the living room a low murmur of admiration rose, to be quickly stifled by people who reminded themselves of where they were.

AND then she saw Rod, waiting for her. Waiting for HER. Bertie Lou's heart swelled with joy and pride. The pain vanished. The music grew agonizingly slow. She wanted to fly with him, to his arms, to hear him say, "I love you, Bertie Lou."

Oh, he had said that, many, many times. But never had he said: "I love you more than anything else in the world."

Bertie Lou wanted him to say it. But Rod wouldn't say much about his love. That would be sappy.

Bertie Lou had a fleeting instant of hating herself for the defeat of her pride. She wanted to be Rod's wife, second choice or third, or the last girl in the world.

She knew that nothing could induce her to turn and run back from him. Let Lila watch! She would see only joy.

Bertie Lou did not look around for her. Her eyes were upon the toes of her small slippers.

Remembering, she had torn them away from her bridegroom to assume the demure expression traditionally belonging to brides.

Everyone might be silently speculating, as her bridesmaids had speculated, and she might never again see her pride in full flower, but life wouldn't be endurable without Rod. If pride was the price she must pay for all the love she could wring from life, then so be it.

She might learn some day that Rod had never loved anyone as he loved her—but Bertie Lou would always have to admit that she had married him in doubt—had been willing to be second love, second choice, rather than give him up.

THE spin and toss of emotions through which she had passed since her mother called her out of her room was almost too much for an overwrought, sensitive girl.

Bertie Lou scarcely heard the minister's words. She responded automatically to the congratulations and good wishes of the relatives and friends who closed in upon them at the end of the ceremony.

She hardly realized that she was Rod's wife.

Until Lila came up and kissed her, wishing her joy. Then Bertie Lou seemed to come to life again. Lila was ravishing in a pink frock and lilac picture hat. What if her hair was not naturally blond? It was beautiful. She looked like a golden girl out of a dream.

Bertie Lou was surprised that Rod did not seem to notice it. Lila was saying to him: "I'll help fix up your place while you're away. I know so well what you like, Rod."

Listening In on Democrats

Mrs. Ann Minthorn Heald, 85, aunt of Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee for president, sat at the radio in her cozy little home in Mayfield, Cal., listening to the doings of the Democrats in Houston, Tex. She wanted to see "who they'd pick to try to beat Herbert."

Gone! The World's Most Famous Curls

"America's sweetheart" has parted company with the long golden curls you see in this picture. Admired by picture fans more than a decade, the curls went back to Hollywood from New York in a box rather than under Mary Pickford's hat, the other day. Secrecy shrouded the operation—perhaps for fear on Mary's part that the nation would get out an injunction to prevent it, or something like that. Mary doesn't expect to appear in films any more as a juvenile. That's why she did it," 'tis said. Here you see the result as Artist George Clark conceives it from description of the "Mary Pickford Bob" by the hairdresser who did the bobbing. The bob really is longer than it looks, for the ends of the hair are curled up for a shortening effect. Mary carefully saved the curls the hairdresser cut off. A movement now is expected to have two or three of them placed in the Smithsonian museum beside Lindy's plane, as something enshrined in the hearts of Mary's countrymen.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICEDr. Frank McCoyWhy The Fast Way to Health*

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTHY DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. MCCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER. ENCLOSE STAMPED ADDRESS ENVELOPE FOR REPLY.

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed large envelope for reply.

OUR THIRD SET OF TEETH

There were teeth before there were dentists—but there were also tooth aches. Since a tooth pain is about as agonizing a thing as one can feel, various races in the past have found means of extracting the teeth. Tongues or pinners were used by some of them, but the original method was to hammer the tooth loose with a mallet and crude bone nail so that it could be pulled out with the fingers. In some countries, various prayer methods were used in cases of tooth ache, and even yet in Catholic territories, St. Appollonia is the patron Saint of tooth ache. The Chinese have a very effective method of curing tooth ache by puncturing the gum under the aching tooth and inserting capsicum or some other counter-irritant into the wound. This is still a useful remedy. You should have a small vial of tincture of capsicum in your home, and the next time you have a tooth ache, just dip a small piece of cotton on the end of a toothpick into the capsicum and then place the cotton in the cavity of the tooth. This will usually give immediate relief. Be careful not to get any of the capsicum on the tongue, however, since it is manufactured out of the same kind of hot stuff as Tobacco sauce.

The art of manufacturing false teeth is not a new one, since the Eskimo and a few other primitive races manufactures false teeth by carving them out of tusks, hard bones, and horns of various animals.

Some aborigines have a very painful and useless custom of mutilating the teeth by knocking out or filing down to a point some of their front teeth. This is considered a proof of their courage and an enhancement of their beauty. At least there may be some truth in the first statement.

There are said to have been several individuals who grew a third set of teeth, but most of us will have to be satisfied with our third set in the way the dentists make them.

The dentists have developed a wonderful skill in advancing their profession. It may be interesting to my readers to know that many dentists are referring their patients to my menus for keeping their teeth in good condition. They are realizing that teeth may be destroyed as much by acidosis as by uncleanness, and that the daily use of the toothbrush will not magically brush away the cause of tooth decay when the teeth require special foods containing mineral elements for their nourishment. In treating pyorrhea, it is advisable that a patient go on an orange juice fast for a few days to alkalize the blood and then to the dentist for local treatments. If the patient will follow a correctly combined diet during the course of his dental treatments, he is sure to get more permanent results.

Do not have the teeth pulled unless absolutely necessary. Children should be encouraged to chew whole raw vegetables, such as carrots, turnips, cucumbers, beets and celery. The fibers of these vegetables will require enough chewing to strengthen the teeth and pretty nearly keep them clean. And, most important, these vegetables will supply the elements to maintain the teeth's nourishment.

The foods that are best suited for tooth development are: spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, celery, beets, and beet greens, blackberries, figs, asparagus, cucumbers, dandelions, strawberries, watercress, cabbage, turnips, milk, rutabagas, pine nuts and cottage cheese.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Anxious writes: "Please tell me is it possible for a person to have pernicious anemia and high blood pressure at the same time? What should be the cure?"

ANSWER: Pernicious anemia and high blood pressure seldom go together but it is quite common to see a secondary anemia with arterial hypertension. Diet is the most prominent factor in the treatment of any of these conditions, but I would have to know more about the particular case in question before I could be wise to give any definite advice.

QUESTION: Mother writes: "My baby two years old has 15 teeth, but there are two milk teeth that will not come through. Why is that, and should the gums be lanced?"

ANSWER: Do not be too quick to lance the gums. The full set of milk teeth, 28 in all, does not come through until the child is about three years of age. If you will give the baby plenty of greens and milk he will be sure to develop a good set of teeth.

QUESTION: Reader asks: "Can a dropped stomach be cured, and how?"

ANSWER: A prolapsed stomach can always be raised to its proper position through taking the "setting-up" exercises. If any adhesions exist which are holding the stomach down these must be broken loose first by manipulative treatment.

QUESTION: Mrs. H. G. writes: "I read your article in which you stated that asthma could be cured by diet. Will you kindly tell me what the diet is?"

ASHTON NEWS

Ashton.—On Wednesday of last week Mr. and Mrs. Martin Smith had as their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Smith and son Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Ashton; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Smith and Fred Smith of Wheelersburg, Ohio, and Mrs. Christina Zahnen of Chicago. On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Zahnen motored to Rockford where they spent the day shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pfeiffer and daughter Rowena, Mr. and Mrs. August Pfeiffer and daughters Miss Mae and Mrs. Jack Chase and son, Ronald motored to Aurora to visit at the home of Mrs. Pfeiffer's mother, Mrs. Emma Kersten. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pfeiffer and daughter, Rowena have returned but Mr. and Mrs. August Pfeiffer and daughters will remain for a longer visit.

The many Ashton friends of Miss Edith Kersten of Aurora, who has been quite ill for the past three years, will be pleased to learn that Miss Edith's health is greatly improved at this time.

Mrs. Frank Hart entertained her mother Mrs. Wagner of Dixon, Miss Minnetta Wagner of St. Charles, and Mrs. William Weiner of Dixon one day last week.

Charles Pfeiffer was a business caller in Daysville Wednesday.

On account of the rain the show, which was scheduled for every night this week, was postponed Monday and Tuesday nights, but a large crowd attended Wednesday and enjoyed the performances which were free to all. Should the weather permit the show will continue for the remainder of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson and family have moved to Preppert where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fuchs of Rockford are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Adam Schinzer. Miss Clara Fessler of Polo was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Davis of Oregon Wednesday, June 20, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fessler. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to the wedding guests at the Nachusa Tavern in Dixon. Mrs. Davis taught the fifth and sixth grade during the past year and many Ashton friends extend congratulations and best wishes for future happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside in Chicago where Mr. Davis is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Sachs and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. Dora Sachs of Ashton and Mrs. Christina Zahnen of Chicago motored to Park Ridge last Thursday and spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson. A bounteous scramble dinner was enjoyed by all. During the day the guests were entertained from time to time by Miss Dorothy Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson. Although Miss Dorothy is only eight years old she has had private instructions in elocution and those who have heard her say she has made remarkable progress along this line and are more than pleased with her charming manner and ability to entertain her listeners.

Mrs. Clarence Young and daughter of Freeport are guests at the home of Mrs. Young's parents Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Griffith.

A large number from Ashton attended the Presbyterian picnic which was held at Lowell Park Tuesday.

Mr. Meisner who spent some time in Ashton and then made a business trip to Chicago has returned and is again assisting at the Brown Coffee Shop. One of Mr. Meisner's specialties is the making of dainty sandwiches.

Amelia Coming Home

Southampton, Eng. June 28—(AP)—Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, fresh from the cor- dial welcome given them in Great Britain after their flight across the Atlantic from Newfoundland, sailed for home today.

The group of American fliers was given a hearty greeting by the passengers lining the rails of the steamship President Roosevelt as their tender came alongside.

Miss Earhart was guest of honor at a private dinner given last night by Mrs. Hubert Scott Payne of the Imperial Airways and slipped away from her hotel quietly this morning to join the liner without any official function.

The bone in the human body popularly called the breastbone is really known as the sternum, and the clavicle is often called the collar bone.

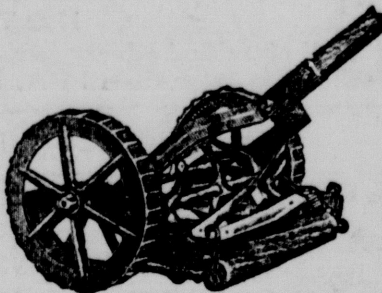

In the first quarter of 1928, National Air Transport, Inc., carried 177,505 pounds of air mail.

160,000 ACRES OF COTTON

"WHAT OF IT?... Supposing Dunlop does require all the cotton from 160,000 acres. What does that mean to my pocketbook?"

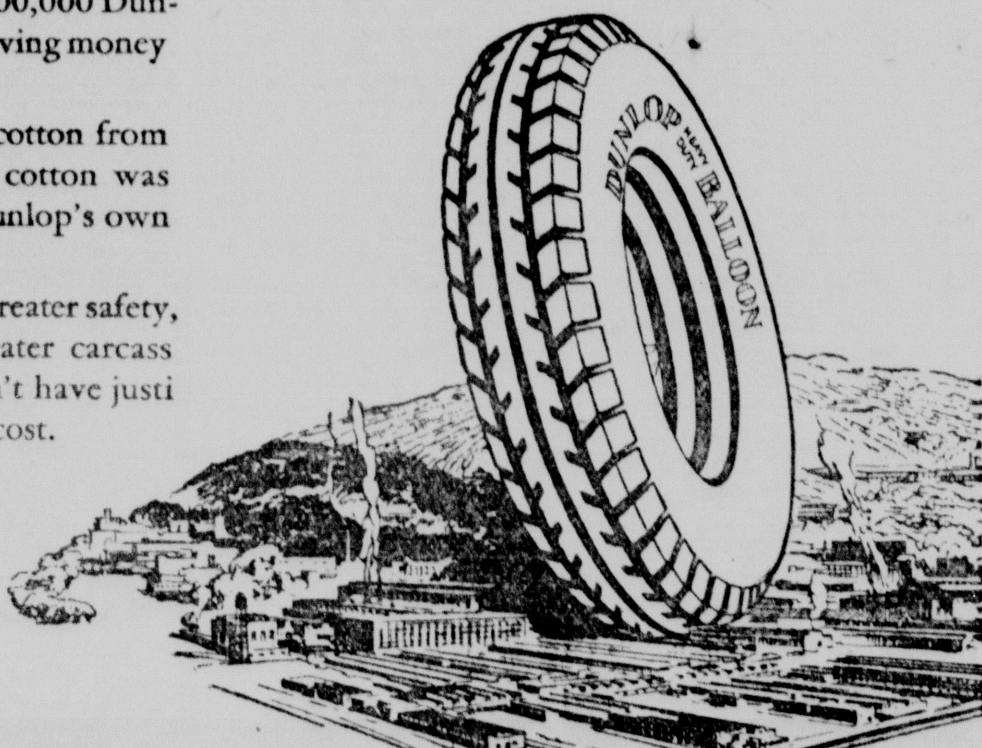

Just this. Dunlop has grown great because Dunlops save money. Over 26,000,000 Dunlops are now in use—each one saving money for its owner.

Last year, Dunlop required the cotton from 160,000 acres, and all of this cotton was spun into cable-twist cord at Dunlop's own cotton mills.

Dunlops are better tires—with greater safety, greater tread mileage, and greater carcass strength. Otherwise they couldn't have justified their slightly higher initial cost.

"DUNLOP CITY"

Throughout the world, the productive Dunlop Properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.
